This snapped a three day reak of severe days, as winds picked up, touching 15 km/hour speeds during the day. But despite the dissipating fog, over 500 flights were delayed and over 130 were cancelled at Delhi's Indira Gandhi International (IGI) airport as the impact of very dense fog and widescale disruptions on Monday spilled over into Tuesday.

The current spell of bad air began on the weekend, when surface pollutants stayed trapped under slow winds, dipping temperatures, and an "inversion" layer, even as a weak sun failed to disperse them. Residents continue to complain of laboured breathing and burning eyes — which have now become all too normal — and the weather conditions served as a reminder of collapsing systems that fail to mitigate the yearly health crisis that descends on the Capital.

Analysis of long-term data shows that the worst may not yet be over, as further changes in meteorology and dipping temperatures are likely to worsen air quality by the month-end. Delhi typically sees a spike in pollution in the second half of December. The first pollution peak in October-November typically coincides with stubble burning and Diwali, and the second is driven by low temperatures, fog and local sources, such as vehicles and waste burning.

Sirsa said enforcement will be carried out through ANPR (Automatic Number Plate Recognition) cameras and on-ground checks. Earlier this year, ANPR cameras were installed at border points and fuelling stations to capture end
